Wedding Operations Book: Source of Truth

How to Use This Page

This Page is the working operations manual for the wedding. It is meant to answer the practical questions that come up during planning, setup, the ceremony, the reception, cleanup, and the following morning.

Use this Page when someone asks:

- Where does this sign go?
- Who owns this task?
- Who moves this floral piece?
- Who checks the tables?
- Who helps with grandparents?
- Who manages the bonfire?
- What should be done the night before?
- What must be collected before everyone leaves?
- What can wait until the next morning?

This document is intentionally specific. The goal is to remove guessing.

Chapter 1: Operating Rules

Final Decision Rule

The couple makes final decisions before the wedding. On the wedding day, the couple should not be the default problem-solving team.

If something needs a decision on the wedding day, use this chain:

1. Matron of Honor / bride's sister
2. Assigned zone owner
3. Assigned setup lead
4. Couple only if the decision affects the ceremony, photos, timeline, vows, family dynamics, money, or something sentimental

Style Rules

Do not add design elements that introduce a different style direction.

Avoid:

- Orange accents

- Olive accents
- Burlap or rustic mason jar styling
- Random filler decor
- Extra signage that does not help guests
- Unplanned DIY pieces
- Last-minute redesigns

Everything should stay in the family of:

- Candy pink
- White
- Romantic pink florals
- Soft garden-inspired styling
- Clean, intentional, polished setup

Setup Rules

Every guest-facing space should be:

- Free of boxes, bags, bins, trash, and water bottles
- Straightened before guests arrive
- Safe for guests to walk through
- Easy to understand without someone explaining it
- Photo-ready before the photographer captures room/detail shots

If something looks wrong, do not improvise a new design. Ask the assigned checker or Matron of Honor.
